SeaShare Names High Liner Foods as 2014 National Fisheries Institute's Donor of the Year

SeaShare works with, and for, NFI's members - combining donations of seafood and processing with financial contributions, to improve the nutritional offerings at food banks nationwide. This year High Liner will be awarded as 2014 NFI Donor of the Year.

Executive Director Jim Harmon had this to say about the generosity exemplified by High Liner Foods: "While it is hard to single out and identify any one company, High Liner Foods increased their level of support substantially this year. Our board recognized the impact of High Liner Foods' participation. Over the last twelve months they've donated seafood, processing, and financial support. That's a win, win, win for the hungry families we serve."

Keith Decker, President and COO of High Liner, will receive the award next week at Seafood Expo North America in Boston.
